ANTOINE'S HISTORY

Antoine's world-renowned French-Creole cuisine, impeccable service, and unique atmosphere have combined to create an unmatched dining experience for locals and visitors in New Orleans since 1840. Known as the country's oldest family-run restaurant, Antoine's is still owned and operated by a fifth-generation relative of the original founder, Antoine Alciatore.

PROHIBITION IN NEW ORLEANS

Is it hard to believe that the people of New Orleans were not allowed to drink? Between 1919 and 1933, prohibition was in full swing in the city, but lucky for us, it was easy to get around. As a port city, New Orleans had access to many ingredients used to make alcohol such as molasses for rum. Speakeasies were in many office buildings around the French Quarter.

Before delivery was as popular as it is today, drive up bartenders were a common occurrence.

Antoine's is home to an original prohibition era speakeasy currently used for private dining. The Mystery Room, as it is referred to today, can be accessed through a door in the Hermes Bar but back in the day, the only entrance was through the Ladies Restroom as to avoid law enforcement.

The Mystery Room, and our other 13 dining rooms, are great for your next roaring 20's themed party!
